

Blessing In Disguise

From the time you were born, you have been the recipient of many blessings. Some are blessings in disguise, events that at first seem to be unlucky but which much later you recognize as fortunate.

Choose one time in your life when something happened to you that, at the time, seemed to be disappointing or sad but later turned out to be the best thing that could have happened because of all that resulted from it. Narrate the memory and in the conclusion, analyze how it could be called a blessing in disguise.

Examples:

You missed your flight to paradise but there was a fire in the hotel the night you would have been there.

You address and seal all the adult cards for your bar/bat mitzvah invitations and realize you forgot to include the RSVP cards; you tediously begin to open each one, only to discover that the printer left a large black mark across many of the invitations. You found out in time to remedy the situation.
